TIMEFORM VIEW: Last-time-out maiden winners TRICORN and Faience both possess striking potential and can fight out the finish of this handicap. Marginal preference is for the former, a well-bred colt who did the job in good style at Wolverhampton recently and represents a top yard which boasts a fine strike rate at this venue. Marzouq should benefit from the step up to a mile and is best of the rest.

Long Handicap: Thorntoun Lady 8 - 0

TIMEFORM VIEW: The vote goes to KI KI, who was only beaten around a length off this mark when fourth in a C&D handicap last time. That form looks solid (the winner and second have both scored subsequently) and Bryan Smart's charge should be sharper now given that she was returning from a 3-month break that day. Fredricka is feared most, ahead of Poppy In The Wind and the hat-trick seeking Veena.

Ambitious Icarus and Bahango are others to consider.

However, his conqueror that day did the form no harm at all when third in a listed race subsequently and, with main rival Glorious Artist yet to conclusively prove that he stays 7f, Michael Bell's charge should come out on top this time.

TIMEFORM VIEW:

AFRICAN GREY failed to pull up any trees in 2-y-o maidens, but he could be a different proposition now faced with a stiffer test and pitched into a handicap. The fact that his yard has been among the winners recently augurs well and he is marginally preferred to Irish raider Annie Apple. Alfolk clearly found 1¼m too stiff a test at Lingfield last time and also enters calculations.
