ATR VERDICT: BARRANCO VALLEY returned from over three years off the track with a satisfactory effort when fourth at Exeter back in March. He has since undergone wind surgery and that, combined with the application of a tongue-tie, could see him take a step forward after a 100-day absence. Nonesuch displayed some ability in bumpers and may well be suited by a step up in distance, while Represented had excuses when last seen in November, due to the Anthony Honeyball stable not fully firing, and he is better judged on his hurdling debut at the same course a fortnight earlier.

Top Tip: BARRANCO VALLEY (1)

Watch out for: NONESUCH (10)
