ATR VERDICT: Dual representation from three yards here as Sam Curling, Gordon Elliott and Henry de Bromhead get some of their youngsters on to the track. The newcomers would surely be favoured in a match bet against those that have run, and Elliott's debutant MR JACKMAN is given the nod. Jamie Codd is up to steer the Flemensfirth gelding and though there's a danger looking at his breeding that he could get out-speeded by sharper types at two miles around here, trust the Wexford man to employ his mount to best effect. Stable companion Papal Lodge could easily make his presence felt under Lisa O'Neill, and the market ought to be informative. If Second Subaltern can build on his Aintree fifth placing in November, he'll make an impression. Derek O'Connor is on the other Curling hope though, Laureldean Cross.

Top Tip: MR JACKMAN (5)

Watch out for: PAPAL LODGE (6)
