ATR VERDICT: GALICE MACALO was tried in Listed company on a couple of occasions last season and was in contention to go very close to winning when falling at Aintree in December. A long break after her subsequent effort at Doncaster will have done her the world of good and this appears a suitable opportunity for the filly to shed the maiden tag. Marada displayed promise when third at Huntingdon last December but didn't quite go on from that effort in two subsequent outings. She warrant respect on her hurdling debut along with Fivetotwelve, who appears the pick of the Olly Murphy trio.

ATR VERDICT: ES PERFECTO shaped with plenty of encouragement when third on his sole bumper outing at Kempton in February and Alan King's gelding is expected to improve for the switch to hurdles over a longer trip. Hometown Hero cost 62,000 pounds at the Cheltenham December sale following success in a point-to-point earlier that month and warrants consideration for leading connections, while Kap Auteuil can step forward from his hurdling debut when fifth at Kempton in March.

ATR VERDICT: GETAWAY TRUMP was a disappointing odds-on favourite when last of three on his return to action at Fontwell earlier in the month, but this former Grade 1 runner-up is surely capable of better than that and can be given another chance. Zoffee was a useful juvenile hurdler last year and he would be the most likely beneficiary if the selection fails to fire again. Golden Taipan and Trincomalee both have claims but the former is the pick of that pair.

ATR VERDICT: MISS HONEY RYDER signed off last term by landing a maiden hurdle against her own sex at Huntingdon and is interesting on her seasonal bow now moving into a handicap on a workable mark. First-time cheekpieces could spark an improved performance from Umndeni, a course winner who is eased in grade, while the likes of Vancouver and Calum Gilhooley also command respect in their current form.

ATR VERDICT: BOOTLEGGER had a gruelling race when bringing up the field at Newton Abbot on his penultimate start but he bounced back to produce a solid effort in defeat over hurdles at Perth over this trip last time and could build on that performance now chasing again. Denmead has the ability needed to figure at this level, likewise Nightfly, although the latter does have a 325-day absence to overcome.

ATR VERDICT: PINK SHEETS made a winning switch to the handicap ranks over course and distance 10 days ago and there could be plenty more to come from Mick Quinn's forward-going six-year-old under a 7lb penalty. Dariya backed up her emphatic Stratford success, with a game victory at Newton Abbot and arrives here in top form in search of a hat-trick, while Princess T wasn't far away from back-to-back triumphs recently and has to be taken seriously.

ATR VERDICT: Point winner BRAVO BUDDY set the standard here on the back of two podium finishes so far under Rules and Ian Williams' four-year-old could make it third time lucky in this sphere. He is sure to improve for jumping obstacles in time, but has shown enough ability to suggest he can land a race of this nature for now. Rock The House was a respectable sixth at this venue on his first appearance in February and could be an improver for local handler Olly Murphy. Captain Morgs requires serious consideration on debut, with the 55,000-euros buy saddled by Nicky Henderson, while Greatest Star and Roscoe Tara are other newcomers to note.
